Electronic Devices Policy

Camp is a Device-Free Zone. This includes Cell/Smartphones, tablets, iPods, iPads, Kindle, Smart watches, and other E-Readers.

For over 30 years, Armada PAL Camp has been device-free. However, over the last few years, Cell/Smartphones, tablets, iPods, and other devices have become very popular. Statistically, since electronic devices have become so popular, kids spend less time outside than once did.

PAL Camp believes that camp is a unique opportunity to be device-free and interact with the beautiful setting of Center Lake Camp. All staff members will have cell phones in an emergency or need to correspond with another staff member. Other than that, you will not see our staff members with electronic devices either.

PAL Camp is a week to connect with nature and be disconnected from their devices.

Behavior Management

- I. Camp rules are to be discussed at orientation with parents present, at pre-camp meetings, at Sunday's Welcome Assembly, and as a cabin on Sunday night.
 - Campers are to be made aware of the consequences of breaking a rule.
 - Consistency is important. Always enforce all rules.
 - Listen carefully to the camper to hear all sides of a situation before administering any consequence.
 - Help campers understand and develop positive alternative behaviors, which are appropriate to replace the unacceptable ones.
 - Use positive methods of intervention so that the camper does not become defensive or even deny ownership to breaking the rule.
 - Use acceptable/realistic consequences of rule breaking.
 - Consequences must be appropriate and not too harsh.

- II. Consequences may be given by the following:
 - Senior Counselor in Charge of Camper's Cabin
 - Assistant Director
 - Director

- III. Phone calls home are to be done on an as needed basis determined by the director and assistant directors.

- IV. Junior Counselors who are in charge during a particular behavior should report information to the senior counselor, assistant director, and director.

V. A consequence may NOT include the following:

- Depriving a camper of food or sleep;
- Placing a camper alone without staff supervision, observation, and interaction
- Subjecting a camper ridicule or threat.
- Subjecting a camper to excessive physical exercise or excessive restraint.
- Subjecting a camper to hazing or the practice of rituals and other activities involving harassment.

VI. Periodic evaluations of program/staff/camper groupings shall be conducted to ensure that the camp environment is not contributing to behavior problems. The Director, Assistant Directors, and senior staff may do this.

VII. If restraint is required to protect a camper from him or herself or to protect others from the camper, only those staff who have received training may implement restraint.

VIII. Staff are encouraged to be a role model. Do not expect campers to follow rules if the staff does not.

Homesickness Policy

Occasionally, homesickness is a problem at the base camp. It is very contagious and can spread before your eyes. Here are some strategies you can follow:

Prevention is the Best Medicine: Planning activities that help campers get to know other campers and showing them around the camp grounds helps campers get familiar with the facility and the people and makes them feel more at home.

Don't Smother: If someone is homesick, don't be alarmed. Show positive attention and not excessive sympathy. Try to "nip it in the bud" as the whole cabin can be affected.

Quiet & Shy: Immediately locate the camper that is excessively quiet and shy or the camper that doesn't seem to connect with his or her peers. Establish a positive relationship quickly.

Ice Breakers: Ice-breakers and get-to-know-you games provide campers and staff with a way to get to know the likes and dislikes, skills, talents, attitudes, and personalities of the people that they will be spending time with during their stay.

Learn their Names: Learning names may seem like a simple thing, but when someone calls you by name, you instantly feel like you belong.

Keep 'em Busy: During down times, campers tend to think about home and focus on the fact that they aren't there. Rest hour, early morning, and before bedtimes are times when campers may get homesick because these are times when they are used to being with their families. Try to keep their minds on other things. Play some quiet games, pass a story around, or write a group letter that you can copy and mail home to parents.

TLC: Homesick campers might just need a little extra care. Spend a little extra time with them or ask your co-counselors or other staff member to take a special interest in the camper.

Phone Calls: Don't let the camper ever call home....If homesickness is severe, inform the camp director or someone else in authority. A call come will be made at their discretion.

All Alone: Do not leave campers alone. Keep the campers busy...This is necessary for their physical and emotional safety.

Don't make promises you can keep: Kids can be devious when it comes to getting something they want, and counselors must be sure they don't make promises that they can't or aren't willing to keep. Sometimes when you're trying to get a child to stop crying, you may promise a phone call home or something even worse.
